

Tracey Rogers is a gifted Bible teacher who brings passion and enthusiasm to the life-giving Word of God. Tracey speaks with authority and authenticity leaving her listeners wanting to spend more time with God in His Word and inspiring them to live lives that shine His light. Tracey has also taken her revealing teaching lessons and unlikely insights and put them in her new book, Life Lessons from the book of Job.

Tracey Rogers has been teaching the Word of God for years to a group of women over 60. This pairing seemed unlikely since Tracey was only 38 when she joined the group, but these women have become so influential into Tracey's life that she fondly refers to them as her "people."

Although God's plan was in motion before she was born, Tracey didn't always know teaching His Word was her calling. She was raised in a Christian home in Kingsport, Tennessee; the oldest of two sisters. Tracey came to Christ as a child, but as she grew, her faith became one of routine and rules rather than a relationship motivated by love and devotion.

Tracey and her better half, Kevin met in college and moved to Franklin, TN. Tracey eventually quit her job supervising a maintenance crew in order to "supervise" her 3 active children. She also began to meet with her friends for a weekly Bible study. It was her first one and she loved it! Bible study was exciting and intellectually stimulating, but more importantly, she came to know Christ personally and intimately, and found a deeper relationship with Him that was absent of rules and full of desire to know Jesus and please Him.

Tracey went from participating in Bible studies, to leading them, to eventually spending time with God alone as her teacher. During this time her teaching gift became clear and His desire for her life was confirmed. Tracey humbly teaches all that God reveals to her, without apology and without question. She believes God knows His people long to hear His truth and her call is to simply communicate His message, never her agenda.

Tracey believes God has set her apart before she was born to bring her to this very season of teaching His Word. (Galatians 1:5). Tracey would love to share with you His message of love, truth and encouragement in a compelling and captivating way.

Tracey Rogers lives in Franklin, Tennessee with her husband of almost 19 years, Kevin, along with their children Preston, 14; John John, 12; and Josie, 10. In addition to serving on the adult groups staff at Church of the City, she has been incorporating her love of scripture by teaching Christ-centered yoga for 4 1/2 years.
